The surrounding small towns have weekly open-air markets where you can buy local produce and there are also several supermarkets nearby. Through the summer many will have annual festivals and fetes, parading livestock and produce, people and children, some in traditional costume. Celebrations with dancing, music, food and wine lasting well into the night with a fireworks display often as the finale.

There are numerous places for picnics, or to visit the historic monuments around, beautiful chateaux, ancient churches, Roman remains and pre-historic sites.

The charm of Provence choose to go to La Camargue, or visit Marseille with its creeks, or the resorts of Var, or go up into the scented hills... Escape from the overcrowded places such as Saintes-Maries-de-la-mer and take the Cacharel road in the direction of Pioch Badet, admiring the beauty of the surrounding countryside.

In Arles, stroll along the nostalgic Alyscamps; and in Roussillon, nicknamed 'Red Delphi' by Jean Vilar, you will be enthralled by the blaze of the setting sun. Don't miss Avignon with its Vieux Sextier street, nor Aix-en-Provence, and take a drive along the Mirabeau to Jas-de-Bouffon where you can imagine Cézanne behind his Shepard's hut. You must also take time for the beauties hidden behind the coast.
